

The Best Place to Submit Invention Ideas

If you're looking for a place to submit your invention ideas for consideration, you've come to the right place. Before you choose a company to submit your idea to, read up on its history. Many companies will not purchase an invention that infringes on a patent. This means you need to make sure that you're on their radar.

Quirky

If you're submitting invention idea to an online platform, Quirky is a great place to start. The site's staff members evaluate submissions for marketing potential, design potential, and viability. They also offer suggestions to improve the idea. Inventions that receive enough votes and comments will move on to development.

RICO

If you have a great idea for a new product, you may be wondering where to submit it. Luckily, there are several places where you can submit your Invent Help to companies. General Electric is one of those places. The company has a strong history in creating innovative products and working with large retailers like Walmart and Amazon. You can submit your idea online with a brief description and target audience. The company also accepts unsolicited ideas. However, you must request an NDA before submitting your idea to this company.

FastCap

FastCap is one of the top InventHelp submission sites. It accepts ideas for new products and services and has an active review process. Once your idea has been reviewed, it will be available for consideration. The submission process can be completed online. Make sure you read through the submission process carefully.

Eco-Products

If you have an eco-friendly product idea, Eco-Products might be a good place to submit it. The company manufactures products that are made from recycled materials and promotes a green lifestyle. They are constantly looking for ways to create products that will help the environment. You can send your invention ideas to them via email.

Wilson Sporting Goods

If you are a sports fan, and have an idea for a new product, you should consider submitting it to the Wilson Sporting Goods Company's idea portal. This company makes sporting equipment and apparel and is looking for new products to sell. Their goal is to provide unique experiences for their customers. The company also plans to open stores in Beijing, Shanghai, and Los Angeles.

Dorman Products, Inc.

Dorman Products, Inc. (NASDAQ: DORM) is a manufacturer of automotive aftermarket products. It was founded in 1918 and is headquartered in Colmar, Pennsylvania.